

Pole Position for Continental Race Attack

- Sport tires for the race track with various compounds
- Lower rolling resistance, longer tire life, greater grip

Hanover/Korbach, May 4, 2015. The legendary race track tire RaceAttackSlick from Continental is now available once again from dealers. It allows private and hobby racers to race round the track with professional slick tires without any groove whatsoever. Thanks to Continental MultiGrip technology, tires with the Soft, Medium, and Endurance compounds are available for the rear wheels. The Soft and Medium versions are used on the front. These options allow racing drivers to "ride out" their individual requirements even better. Thanks to the precise and smooth fine tuning of the MultiGrip technology between the flexible shoulder area and an abrasion-resistant compound in the center of the tire, the RaceAttackSlick adheres to the road well in all positions. The different zones from hard to soft ensure both optimum grip and long durability, and can be optimally tuned to the various requirements from long distance to race training use.
